

Gayle Y. Fisher, M.Ed.Tech.

Improving the world of learning differences.

- ◆ Contemporary author and speaker
- ◆ Advocate of Special Needs & Learning Differences
- ◆ Compelling collaborator
- ◆ Group facilitator
- ◆ Workshop developer

Founder | Co-Facilitator

- ◆ Special Needs Sibs (SNS) – Founding Co-Facilitator
- ◆ Our Training Center – Founding Co-Facilitator
- ◆ GettingSorted.com – Founder

Education | Experience

- ◆ Intervention Workshops
- ◆ Former Client Services Specialist at enCodePlus
- ◆ Seventeen (17) years in oil/gas/petrochemical, construction, and independent consulting
- ◆ Certified UNT-WISE (DARS) CRP-Director and Job Skills Trainer/Job Coach
- ◆ Studied Educational Technology, Finance, and Pre-Engineering (respective majors) at Texas A&M, University of Houston, Houston Community College

Bio:

Gayle is a mom of learning differences, an educator and a former corporate warrior. She helps you understand what to do to help your children with learning differences prepare for today so that they can be ready for life. Gayle shares with you all that she has learned. Her workshops, presented with a team of facilitators, provide an enhanced interactive and fun experience.

Gayle has a master's degree in Educational Technology from Texas A&M that is put to use each and every day. She lives with her son John in The Woodlands, Texas. Her passion for advocating for the rights of those with learning differences and on behalf of her son, has brought her to the forefront of advancing education and awareness for all.